

Speaker Biography
Thomas Staudinger

Department of Internal Medicine I, ICU
Medical University of Vienna, Vienna General
Hospital

Born in Linz, Austria. After school attendance of University of Vienna, Medical Faculty. Graduation as medical doctor 1992. Assistant fellow in internal medicine (Vienna General Hospital) and graduation as specialist in internal medicine 1999. Appointment as associate professor of medicine 2001, graduation as specialist in Intensive Care Medicine 2003. Currently appointed as head physician of the Department of Internal Medicine I, Intensive Care Unit, Vienna General Hospital. Clinical and research focus on critically ill patients with haematological and oncological diseases as well as treatment of severe lung failure including extracorporeal gas exchange. Director of an ELSO affiliated ECMO center. Involved into of multiple research projects as investigator, multiple publications as first author, senior and co-author as well as multiple invitations for lectures during national and international conventions. Dr. Staudinger is married and father of two sons.